

Europe at work in 2030

– in search of a new narrative

Appeal to the Commission

- Still a lack of attention to the dramatic changes in the world of work within Europe and globally.
- Effects on work and work patterns in society should be an integral part of all new technologies and developments appearing in the European research programs.
- We appeal to the Commission to consider a robust standard line or paragraph requesting all research proposals to pay specific attention to the effects on the working conditions and working patterns of humans. Next to a business case calculating the return on investments in new technologies, we need a human case describing effects on human work.

Towards FP9

Early and coordinated input is key to success

How to support the appeal

Advocacy platforms – something for FP9?

Sign with us

- Agencies, organizations, institutions
- Inform us before November 23
 - Theo.bodin@ki.se

Send in on your own

- Feel free to use parts for your own communication with the Commission

Interact with your national institutions

Suggest important missions to your own national bodies

Thank you all!

